Daniel Dancer the Miser of Harrow!

Literacy Resource Pack
Could the inspiration for Charles Dicken’s famous miser – Scrooge actually be Harrow’s Daniel Dancer?

Daniel was born in Harrow Weald in 1716 and was the oldest of four children. He was not always an eccentric miser; in fact, he started off as respectable farmer. It wasn’t until he inherited property (including Waldo’s Farm, at Hatch End) that he started to display some rather odd behaviour. He soon decided to leave his land fallow in order to save costs, and his poor old horse was only allowed shoes for his back hooves.

Daniel’s interesting lifestyle, (which included the decision to wash in puddles and never use soap), didn’t not stop him having friends and family around him. You can’t help but feel sorry for his sister who shared his tumble-down home. Every Sunday she cooked one piece of beef and fourteen dumplings, and that food lasted the siblings for the whole week! Although once Daniel found a dead sheep, and despite not knowing what had killed it, had his sister make the whole carcass into mutton pies.

Sleeping arrangements at the Dancer household didn’t involve unnecessary luxuries such as beds! The siblings slept on piles of straw. The challenge of keeping warm in a house where fires were not lit was met by wrapping the straw around their legs. In fact one day the lack of fires was highlighted when a neighbour, Lady Tempest, gave the household a gift of a trout. How do you heat a fish to eat it without a fire? Daniel merely sat on the dish until he believed it warm enough to eat!

Daniel Dancer, earlier in his life had been a respected overseer of the poor. Despite his extremely odd behaviour villagers still looked to him whenever there were any attacks on their rights over Harrow Weald Common.

Eventually Miss Dancer fell ill, and her brother with typical cheapskate style refused to pay for the doctor, and unfortunately his sister died without making a will. It is thought she wished her share of the property to go to Lady Tempest in return for her kindness. Her two other brothers claimed her estate, but Daniel fought them in court, claiming £30 per year for the thirty years he had ‘looked after her’ but he also wanted £100 for the last two years of her life because: ‘during that time she has done nothing but eat and lie in bed’
Incredibly Daniel was awarded over one thousand pounds (a considerable sum of money) for looking after his sister during her lifetime! Both this, and rumours of other money made Daniel Dancer’s home a target for local thieves. The miser made the decision to board up the bottom half of his house, meaning he had to enter and leave his house by ladder (which he pulled up after him).

Daniel died in 1796, aged 78, and this is when the house yielded up its treasures:

£600 in a cracked teapot (with a note saying ‘not to be hastily overlooked’)

£200 found up the chimney

£2500 found in a dung heap (we hope this was coins rather than notes!)

In those days that all added up to a considerable sum of money, but the discoveries didn’t end there. In locked chests the following items were found: plates, table clothes, 24 sheets and lots and lots of clothes!

All of Daniel Dancer’s property was left to his neighbour Lady Tempest, but unfortunately, she died three months after the miser’s demise. Rumour had it that she contracted her fatal illness from visiting Daniel on his deathbed!

Stories regarding this colourful local character have been told and retold down the ages, with many colourful embellishments added along the way no doubt!

This Learning Pack gives you literacy ideas to explore using this most eccentric of local tales!
High-class Haiku

A haiku is a short poem, originally from Japan.
It has three lines and a set number of syllables.

Follow these instructions to write a very simple haiku.

Write the first line of your haiku.
It must be 5 syllables and must describe Daniel eg
mis - er - ly and mean
1 2 3 4 5
stingy

Now write line 2.
It must be 7 syllables and should be something Daniel did
eg:
He sat on food to warm it
1 2 3 4 5 6 7

Finally write line 3.
It must have 5 syllables.
Say how you feel about Daniel or his life
eg,
I would share my cash
1 2 3 4 5
What a strange lifestyle
Wish I were as rich
Hope he was happy

Why was he so mean?

Tip
Find ways to play around with numbers of syllables—eg by using commas instead of ‘and’.

Challenge: Can you include a metaphor?
You could write one as the last line, eg,
‘A scruffy scarecrow’.

Miserly and mean
He sat on food to warm it
Bet it tasted bad!
Dear Diary,
Another freezing cold day today so I shall wrap extra straw around me! I’m not wasting money buying clothes!

Imagine being miserly Daniel Dancer.

Write a diary entry about your day.
What did you do? How did you spend your day?
What money-saving, penny-pinching ideas did you come up with today?

Read about Daniel and include some of these facts.
You can also use them to inspire you to invent more details of your own.

Why not try and write from someone else’s point of view?

How about Daniel’s dog, Bob?

Dear Diary,
Today I fancied a nice bite of juicy sheep, but...

Or even his house?

Dear Diary,
My poor old roof needs fixing but my owner is too mean to pay for it!

Think about the features you need to include. Don’t forget to say what you think and feel, as well as what happened. You could end by thinking about what tomorrow will bring.
Imagery

Close your eyes and imagine what it would be like inside Daniel Dancer’s house. Draw a picture of what you see.

You might choose to draw the outside of the house, or even Daniel himself.

Maybe Daniel’s house looked like this old cottage in Pinner?
Now annotate your drawing with some figurative language.

You could start by thinking of your 5 senses—what can you see, hear, feel, smell, taste? Now use the ideas below to write more words and phrases.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Adjectives</th>
<th>Similes</th>
<th>Metaphors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>eg dingy</td>
<td>eg as cold as... or like...</td>
<td>eg an Aladdin’s cave of treasure</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Adverbs</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>eg lifelessly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Personification</th>
<th>Alliteration</th>
<th>Onomatopoeia</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>eg walls groaned</td>
<td>eg bare broken boards</td>
<td>eg creaked</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Features
- adjectives describe the noun
- adverbs describe the verb
- similes compare two things using ‘as’ or ‘like’
- metaphors compare two things without using ‘as’ or ‘like’
- alliteration is two or more words starting with the same sound
- personification gives something human characteristics
- onomatopoeia is a sound effect word

You could now use all your ideas to write a descriptive paragraph. Remember to vary your sentence openers.
In the hot seat!

What an interesting character Daniel was! I wonder why he hated to spend money. I would love to know more about him.

What would you ask him if you could meet him? And what would he reply?

What makes you happy?

Do you have many friends?

Aren’t you worried about becoming ill from rotten food?

Do you ever feel hungry?

Hot Seat
Choose someone to pretend to be Daniel Dancer and take it in turns to ask him questions. Imagine what his replies would be.

Written interview
Set out your questions and answers with the names first, like this:

Interviewer:   or   Q:
Daniel:         A:

You could act out your interview as if it was for TV, maybe for a news report, or chat show. You could also interview his sister, or neighbour. Why not film it?

Tips

- Don’t forget question marks.
- What do you already know about Daniel? Use this to ask interesting questions.
- Think about Daniel’s character and personality when giving his answers. What would he say?
- Avoid questions that require only a yes or no answer.
- Do you think you should be formal or informal when you speak to Daniel?
Daniel Dancer, the local miser, has died, and incredible discoveries have been made in his old house!

Write a newspaper article to report on the findings.

What state was the house in?
What clues are there as to how Daniel lived?
What was found hidden everywhere?
What do people know about Daniel?
Did anyone meet him or know him?
What did they think about him?
What will happen now to all his possessions?

Daniel was a very interesting character and I’m sure local people would love to hear all the interesting details! It will give them something to gossip about!

So make your report fascinating and sensational!

Remember to use interesting vocabulary, such as powerful nouns, verbs and adjectives. Here are just a few examples of some interesting words you could use:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>incredible</th>
<th>terrible</th>
<th>appalling</th>
<th>frightful</th>
<th>miserly</th>
<th>hidden</th>
<th>concealed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>eccentric</td>
<td>stench</td>
<td>amazing</td>
<td>secretive</td>
<td>private</td>
<td>wealthy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Use commas and embedded clauses to extend your sentences and make them more fluent:

Daniel Dancer died. He lived in Harrow Weald. He was a miser. He was 78.

Daniel Dancer, 78-year-old local miser, died in Harrow Weald last night.

You could include pictures with captions. (You will have to draw them—they didn’t have cameras in 1796!)
Daniel Dancer the Miser of Harrow!

Persuasive Penny Pinching

Daniel had some very interesting ways of saving money!
Can you list some of them?

What could YOU do to save money, in school or at home?
What do we spend the most money on in our lives? What gets wasted most?
How can we cut down on this? Think of sensible ways to stop wastage and save resources.

Make a poster of your top 5 money-saving tips.

Features
- catchy slogan
- short phrases or sentences
- eye-catching layout
- clear message

Write a letter to your headteacher to persuade them to follow one of your money saving ideas.

Features
- emotive language
- personal pronouns
- imperative verbs
- reasons to support your point
- conjunctions
- rhetorical questions

How can we save money on paper? Or electricity? Transport? Food? Anything else?

Firstly

Also

Furthermore

In addition

Of course

Surely

If...the...because

For these reasons

On the whole

I feel that

Remember to make your point, explain your reasons, then summarise.